MP3 music zip file download

By Greyson Ferguson
FLAC is a lossless audio format used to download music from the Internet. It provides a CD-quality download, far superior to that of an MP3 file. You don't need any special programs to download FLAC music files to your computer, but you do need the FLAC converter to convert FLAC files to WAV (*.wav). The WAV file maintains the audio integrity of the music track. Download the FLAC music tracks you want. Usually, FLAC comes from a musician's site or record-label site that is allowing you to download music directly from the site itself. Go to the FLAC download page (link provided in Resources). Click the download for your operating system. Once finished downloading, double-click the downloaded file to launch the installation wizard. Follow the brief set of prompts to complete the installation. Open the FLAC software. A small window appears in the middle of the screen. Click and drag the FLAC files into the window and select an output location at the bottom of the screen. Click "Extract" to extract the FLAC format to WAV. A new window appears with the progress of the different files. Each file is extracted one at a time. Once complete, a small message at the bottom of the extraction window states the process being finished. You can now listen to the WAV music files. By Contributor Updated July 21, 2017
MP3 Rocket is one of several music/video downloading services that takes advantage of the Gnutella Network, which allows users to share their files with others via the Internet. Similar to Limewire, the program is very easy to use and gives you unlimited free access to millions of music and video files. Download and install the software from the MP3 Rocket website, but be careful. The basic version of the program is free, but you can pay up to $34 for a "pro" version if you want more than the basic ability to download and share files.Choose the type of file you'd like to download by clicking on one of the icons in the left panel or select "All Types." Enter the file name of the file you want to find in the box in the left panel, and click on "search" or select one of the categories from the toolbar across the top, which will give you access to the more popular music files.Select the genre of music you want from the list in the left panel and names of artists and songs will appear in the right panel.Double click on the artist and song you want and the software will begin searching the network for all files containing that information. They are then displayed as a list in the right panel.Click on the version you want to download and the program will download it to your computer. Your download time may be affected by the connection of the computer hosting the file. If you have the following connections it may take a while to download: Dialup (56k) 8 m 38 s, ISDN (128k) 3 m 46 s, DSL (512k) 56 s, Cable (1024k) 28 s, T1 (1484k) 19 s. Do not click on "Continue" on the MP3 Rocket home page if you want the free version of the software. Clicking on "Continue" brings you to a page to sign up for the Pro version, which can cost you up to $35. To get the free version, click on the word "download" at the bottom of the page. Beware of copyrighted or licensed files that may be available on the network. Since it's a file-sharing service, there may be many of these listed. Downloading them without paying for them is illegal. Check the MP3 Rocket website for tips on how to recognize these files. By Andrew Schrader
Zip files allow users to compress, or archive, a number of other files (including MP3 music) to a smaller format for storage purposes. Since zip files are smaller in size, they are more easily transmittable through email and take less time to transfer between computers or devices. Windows offers the option of creating a zip file in a pre-existing folder, or to create and store it directly to their desktop. Launch a new Windows Explorer window. Navigate to a folder where you want to create a new zipped file. Navigate to your desktop if you want your zipped folder saved to your desktop. Right-click the location where you want your zipped file stored (either a folder or on your desktop) and hold your cursor over the "New" sub-menu. Select the "Compressed (zipped) Folder" option. Enter the desired name for your zipped folder and press "ENTER" on your keyboard. Open a new Windows Explorer window and navigate to the MP3 files you want zipped. Drag and drop your MP3 files directly into the zipped folder icon. For the scofflaws among us, there are endless places to illegally download whatever music you're looking for. But for those looking to expand their collections and musical horizons in more law-abiding ways, there are also lots of legit places to find music from new artists, from live concerts, and much more that won't cost you a dime. And that also won't get you sued by the RIAA in the process. Online music stores
Apple and Amazon will gladly sell you any of its millions of songs or albums at the click of a button. But they also serve up a number of freebies as well. iTunes, for example, offers a free single of the week, featured prominently on the both the main and music sections of the iTunes Store. Apple has a page on the iTunes Store with all free iTunes content at any given moment, including music. And if you install the free Starbucks iOS app, you can download a free Pick of the Week (which of late hasn't exactly been weekly) directly from your mobile device (a different tune than you might get from visiting a Starbucks store). I've gotten tracks from Eric Clapton, Bruno Mars, Rod Stewart, and Norah Jones from it. And then of course there's the huge trove of music podcasts that provide daily or weekly downloads. (Note that all of the above options require a free iTunes Store account.) Free on iTunes. Amazon MP3 actually has quite a bit of free content for the taking. There are pages for free songs, free albums (mostly samplers from indie labels), and music from 'rising stars'. As you might expect, much of it is stuff you've never heard of, but you'll find tracks from the likes of Blondie, She & Him, and The National, as well as classical tracks and kids' music. Free on Google Play. Google Play offers a free music page—currently with 15 tracks from Busta Rhymes, Dave Matthews Band, The Rolling Stones, and a few other bands. The site also has a monthly Antenna sampler of music from up-and-comers, with 12 tracks for July, for example. Other sites
You can find free music in many, many other places. Artist websites, for example, often provide a free download or two to help you get to know them. But that's just the beginning. Rolling Stone offers a free song every day of the week, mostly from lesser-known artists, but you'll find tracks by Femi Kuti and Skinny Puppy thrown in. AOL Music's Spinner Free MP3 Download of the Day showcases lots of unknowns. And NPR Music Downloads has some concerts and music podcasts you can download. NoiseTrade provides free songs/EPs/albums/samplers from a wide cross-section of small/unknown artists. Each page has a "suggested tip" that you can opt to pay if you want to support the artists, and an email address is required to receive your download code. A full 45GB worth of SXSW artists are yours for the taking. You'll find more small bands on Free Music Archive, Last.fm's Free Music Downloads page, Artist Direct, and Jamendo. Fans of South by Southwest (SXSW) can download a "mixtape" of 60 tracks by artists from the 2013 festival from Spin. And the Unofficial SXSW Torrents website includes more than 9000 songs (that's 45GB!) from 2005 to 2013 that were previously available on the SXSW site and collected for your downloading pleasure. Live music
For fans of live music, now is a great time to be alive. Instead of snail-mail trades of cassettes or CDs, you can freely download more new and vintage recordings than you'll ever have time to listen to before you shuffle off this mortal coil. The Internet Archive's Live Music Archive has, at last count, 118,340 items from 5740 bands—most of which you can download in MP3 and lossless FLAC formats (some stuff is streaming only). In the list of bands, you'll find music from such varied artists as The Grateful Dead, Smashing Pumpkins, John Mayer, Camper Van Beethoven, Little Feat, Maroon 5, Death Cab For Cutie, and Ween. Since bands must grant permission for their music to be there, LMA runs heavy on jam bands, but there's plenty to fill up the hard drive of any music lover. Most shows are audience recordings, although there are many soundboard recordings as well. The Live Music Archive has more live music than you can listen to in a lifetime. You'll also find a ton of live-music downloads on BitTorrent trackers such as bt.etree.org, Dime, and The Trader's Den. Of the three, bt.etree.org adheres pretty strictly to offering only material from bands that have a taping policy, such as Phish, moe., The Black Crowes, Primus, and Wilco. The other two sites include much more vintage material from every artist under the sun, and generally remove anything found to be on an official release or when a band complains. But if there's a band you like, there's a good chance you'll find a recording by visiting one of the above sites. (And for more on live shows, check out "Collecting live music in the digital age.")
